SAAFoST's triannual FST magazine is now in its twelfth year of production with issues in April, July and November each year. It is now only readable online.

Earlier this year, FST (which has always been available to SAAFoST members) became accessible to read by non-members as well. The way in which this was achieved was to take away the method of logging in with a password. Doing so has granted it wider access to all food scientists, technologists, and colleagues.

The magazine team and myself are busy with the production of the November 2023 issue and I am planning articles and adverts for the April 2024 edition.

Creative design, detailed proofreading and excellent support from my assistant help make the magazine as professional and accurate as possible.

FST has also obtained an International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) code.

An ISSN is an eight-digit code used to identify newspapers, journals, magazines, and periodicals of all kinds and on all media – print and electronic.

It is proving challenging, in these difficult economic times, to secure adverts. So, if your company would like to write an article about its area of expertise and support this with an advert, please contact me at the above email address.

Thank you.
